Now that a bill of particulars has been ordered in the case of Tilton vs. Beecher, what are those good people to do, who wish not to be contaminated with the perusal of the scandal? For if the generalities were so shocking, what will the particulars be, and which of the leading papers of the country will forego the reproduction of the testimony? Alas for public virtue when the Beecher scandal shall have reached its finale!

"There can be no longer any doubt as to the story told by the dying felon." Mr. Farwell, member of Congress from the Third Illinois District, has prepared a currency bill, which, as far as it goes, has the qualities of simplicity, common sense and practicability to an extent that no other scheme vet submitted could boast. Its main features are free banking, and the retirement of one million in Government bank-notes each month-beginning with July, 1875, until the notes Building lots in the vicinity of the Park not redeemed are at par with gold.
